Fraud Awareness

In recent years, there has been a rise in impersonation scams and investment frauds. It is observed that fraudsters have adopted sophisticated methods to defraud people such as impersonating regulated financial institutions to illegally solicit funds from the public. The public should stay vigilant against such schemes.

In Taiwan, Natixis Taipei Branch only carries out business activities with financial institutions and corporates. It is not offering retail banking services to individuals and securities products such as cash equities, funds, futures, etc. In case of any suspicion or concern, the public can call the Anti-Fraud hotline: 165 [\[link\]](#) administered by the National Police Agency or the Financial Supervisory Commission's (FSC) dedicated reporting/complaint lines [\[link\]](#). Please note that the FSC official website provides a listing of regulated banks [\[link\]](#) and licensed market participants [\[link\]](#) for public use.
